

Artifact:

Domain Two, Organizing Physical Space

As shown in the picture below, I have organized my space deliberately. Students are near one another and all desks from both ends of the room are facing the center. This layout is purposeful for a few reasons. The first is so students can see the whiteboards and daily schedule easily on both sides of the room. Secondly, the desks are faced toward me so students can engage with me as I walk up and down when leading discussions. Thirdly, the desks are separated just enough to allow students to easily work alone when needed. And finally, the desks are also close to one another so students can just easily work with partners and/or groups when needed, depending on instruction provided.

